EXECUTIVE BIOGRAPHY

Building confidence for complex growth.

Dov Fettman is a finance and strategy executive whose career spans aerospace, autonomous robotics and mission-critical technology. He currently serves as Partner & Group CFO of RAKIA Group, where he works across financial strategy, capital planning, governance and institutional readiness for a global technology group operating in complex environments.

Previously, Dov served as Chief Financial Officer of Tevel Aerobotics Technologies, supporting the company's capital formation, international expansion and transition from technological ambition to scalable commercial execution. Earlier, he spent more than 15 years at Israel Aerospace Industries, including over eight years as VP Finance / CFO of the LAHAV Aerostructures Division.

Across these environments, his work has focused on the decisions that shape long-term value: capital allocation, governance, cross-border structuring and the operating discipline required for durable growth. Dov has worked closely with management teams, boards, investors and international partners to build the confidence and institutional foundations that allow ambitious companies to scale responsibly.
